Ambition

I like being creative. I like engineering, design, music and programming. I am trying to get into the web development industry because it seems like a low cost, low barrier to entry field for getting some practical skills with engineering and design.

My goal is to find a job or become an independent web developer and branch out into other creative industries but I still need a lot of experience.

Currently I am searching for a job, preferably a position where I can focus my energy on a narrower area of development, e.g. front-end so i can build experience and grow.

I feel bit scattered trying to digest all the things I am learning but I enjoy the challenge.

I am still very much a newcomer to the industry but I am happy to learn.
